

College students are finding it difficult to balance academics and social life due to increased workload and extracurricular commitments.